Author index to Volume 18

Almaghrbi, Yaser. See Nourzad, Farrokh.

Bahmani-Oskooee, Mohsen, Source of stagflation in an oil-producing country: evidence from Iran, 4:609–620

Bartel, Richard D., Federal Reserve independence and the people's quest for full employment and price stability, 2:231–249

Beed, Cara. See Beed, Clive

Beed, Clive, and Cara Beed, Measuring the quality of academic journals: the case of economics, 3:369–396

de Carvalho, Fernando J. Cardim, The independence of central banks: a critical assessment of the arguments, 2:159–175

Crotty, James R., Is New Keynesian investment theory really "Keynesian"? Reflections on Fazzari and Variato, 3:333–357

Dalziel, Paul, The Keynesian multiplier, liquidity preference, and endogenous money, 3:311–331

Davidson, Paul, Introduction to "Minisymposium: Is an independent central bank necessary or desirable?" 2:157–158

Davidson, Paul, Reality and economic theory, 4:479–508

Dore, Mohammed H.E., Dynamic games in macro models: a critical appraisal, 1:107–123

Evenhouse, Eirik. See Smolensky, Eugene

Fazzari, Steven M., and Anna Maria Variato, Varieties of Keynesian investment theories: further reflections, 3:359–368

Fuller, Christopher G., Elements of a Post Keynesian alternative to "household production", 4:595–607

Harvey, John T., Orthodox approaches to exchange rate determination: a survey, 4:567–583

Howells, Peter G.A., The demand for endogenous money, 1:89–106

Janeway, William H., The 1931 sterling crisis and the independence of the Bank of England, 2:251–268

King, J.E., Sidney Weintraub: the genesis of an economic heretic, 1:65–88

Levy, David, Does an independent central bank violate democracy?, 2:189–210

Mahdavi, Saeid, Some empirical evidence on the temporal relationships between foreign inflows and aggregate spending categories in the United States, 1:125–139

Neal, Penny, Keynesian uncertainty in credit markets, 3:397–418

Norman, Neville R., A general Post Keynesian theory of protection, 4:509–531

Nourzad, Farrokh, and Yaser Almaghrbi, Okun's law and the fulfillment of wage and price expectations, 2:293–308

O'Connell, Joan, Indirect taxes and the Cambridge model, 1:141–151

Palley, Thomas I., Accommodationism versus structuralism: time for an accommodation, 4:585–594

Parsons, Stephen D., Post Keynesian realism and Keynes' General Theory, 3:419–441
Ramadan, Usamah, and Warren J. Samuels, The treatment of Post Keynesian economics in the history of economic thought texts, 4:547–565
Reilly, Siobhán. See Smolensky, Eugene
Rothschild, Kurt, Keynes' General Theory: A look at the criss-cross of reviews, 4:533–545
Rymes, Thomas K., Autonomous and accountable, 2:177–187
Samuels, Warren J. See Ramadan, Usamah
Sanyal, Amal, Real-world agents, REH agents, and the econometrician, 3:471–476
Sanyal, Amal, Access to credit and the inflation process in a developing economy, 4:621–631
Sen, Kunal, and Rajendra R. Vaidya, The determination of industrial prices in India: a Post Keynesian approach, 1:29–52
Shull, Bernard, Federal Reserve independence: what kind and how much?, 2:211–230
Smolensky, Eugene, Siobhán Reilly, and Eirik Evenhouse, Should public assistance be targeted? 1:3–28
Studart, Rogério, The efficiency of financial systems, liberalization, and economic development, 2:269–292
Thacker, Nita, Monetary regimes and the term structure of forward premia, 1:53–64
Vaidya, Rajendra R. See Sen, Kunal
Variato, Anna Maria. See Fazzari, Steven M.
Wolfson, Martin H., A Post Keynesian theory of credit rationing, 3:443–470